Prince Majid and many other officials.

At dawn pilgrims offered their Eid ul Adha prayers at Mina mosque before slaughtering of thousands of sheep, cows, and camels as sacrifices in accordance with Sunnah (teachings) of the Prophet Muhammad. The faithful then began their trip in flocks and groups from Muzdalifz to Mina amidst the call of "Labbaika Allahuma," (Ob God Here we are, responding to your summons.)

As the pilgrims and Muslims in all parts of Saudi Arahia performed their prayers Thursday morning, radio and television stations in the Kingdom transmitted the event live through satellites to various parts of the world from the Makkah Haram and the Holy Prophet Mosque in Medina.

In Riyadh, Sheikh Abdul Aziz ibn Abdullah Al-Sheikh led the prayers before the governor, Prince Salman, and thousands of Muslims. In his sermon, he called on Muslims to abide by Islam's tenets and follow the tradition of the Holy Prophet. He appealed to them to close their ranks and return to the source. Prince Salman then received wellwishers who greeted him and the other mem-bers of the royal family on the occasion of Eid

In Medina, Sheikh Abdullah Al-Zahem, the Imam of the Holy Prophet Mosque, led the prayers before Deputy Governor Sheikh Saad Al-Nasser Al-Sudairi and dwelt on the Holy Qu'ran and Eid ul Adha, He urged Muslims to be punctual and never forego their prayers. He also urged them to unite under Qu'ranic law if they wish to attain glory.

In Buraidah, Sheikh Abdul Halim ibn Abdul Latif led the prayers before Qasim Governor Prince Abdul Ilah ibn Abdul Aziz at King Khaled square. In his sermon, the Imam dealt with the virtues of pilgrimage and with the tradition of Eid-ul Adha, the feast of sacrifice, to commemorate the sacrifice of the prophet Abraham. He urged Muslims to adhere to Islam's precepts.

Leaders greet Khaled on Eid

JEDDAH, Oct. 8 (SPA) - King Khaled Wednesday received reply cahles of congratulations and greetings on the occasion of Eid-ul-Adha from King Hassan II of Morocco, President Dauda Jawara of Gam-bia, acting President Qazi Abdul Sattar of Bangladesh and other Arab and Islamic leaders. They wished the King health and happiness and the people of Saudi Arahia further progress and prosperity.

Recounts murder details

CAIRO, Oct. 8 (AP) - Egypt's parliament gave a 5-to-1 endorsement to Vice President Hosni Mubarak as the sole candidate to succeed slain President Anwar Sadat in a nationwide election next Tues-

Meeting in emergency session Wednes-day, 330 members of parliament — 69 more than the needed two-thirds --- seconded the nomination of Mubarak by the National Democratic Party. Officials said there were 55 abstentions, four absentees and three disqualified votes.

Muharak, the air force commander groomed by Sadat to be his successor, accepted the nomination in a televised late-night meeting with a parliamentary delegation.

At an impromptu news conference afterwards, he told reporters Sadat was killed Tuesday by four men - not six as previously reported—"led by an extremist." He said the assassination was "a criminal act dertaken by individuals and was by no means a coup attempt." "There is a long story behind all this, but I prefer to keep silent till the interrogation is completed," Mubarak said.

Defense Minister Abdul Halim Abu Ghazala said the killers were not members of any political organization and bad no links with any fnreign government, the newspaper Al Akhbar reported.

A Western diplomat, who asked that his name nnt be used, said the attack was 'directed primarily at the president. There certainly is no evidence of a massive threat nf dissension in the army." Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said an official report account of the government's investigation would be raised Thursday or Friday.

The vice president was at Sadat's right on the reviewing stand when the assassins struck during a parade celebrating the 1973, Arab-Israeli war. He escaped with a wound on his left wrist. Five men in additinn to Sadat were reported killed and at least 11 were wounded.

"I saw the president stand," Mubarak said. "I stood, too, and to my utter horror and disbelief I saw a man throw a grenade at the stand, and then gunfire broke out, "I was hurled to the ground and so was the president, but I could not believe what my eyes had seen. The president was taken away in a helicopter."

One of the assassins was an officer, another a retired officer, while the other two were civilians masquerading as soldiers, said Ghazala, who was also slightly wounded.

The killers jumped from a truck in the parade, threw hand grenades, then ran to reviewing stand and sprayed its occupants with automatic rifle-fire.

Earlier reports said there were six men in the assassination squad and two were killed by security forces. The discrepancy between this and the later account was not explained, but Western military attaches who were looking down on the reviewing stand from behind insisted at least seven men were involved in the attack.

Col. Peter Rosser, the British military attache, said six men riding in the backof the truck and possibly one more from the call jumped from the vehicle and ran toward Sadat with their rifles blazing. He said the attackers included two officers and he believed both were killed.

Security breakdown raises questions

Gunbattles erupt in Egyptian town

CAIRO, Oct. 8 (Agencies) — Egyptian police were dropped by parachute in the southern town nf Asyut Thursday as security forces fought a day-lnng gunbattle with extremists, eyewitnesses said.

The battle in Asyut, 400 km (250 miles) south of Cairo, was the first nutbreak of violence in Egypt since the assassinatinn of President Anwar Sadat Tuesday.

The eyewitnesses, speaking hy telephone, said the police parachutists were dropped to help recapture the local security headquar-ters and a police station, which has beenseized by the extremists.

They said clashes erupted after police intervened to hreak up an illegal open-air prayer gathering, banned under emergency

A senior local official told Reuters by telephone that the extremists opened fire on police with sub-machineguns after dawn prayers marking the start of the Muslim feast of Eidul Adha. The young extremists donned stnlen police uniforms, marched through the town and took over the security forces headquarters and police station, Abdul Aziz Eid, assistant secretary-general of the Asyut governmrate, Asyut is a large center for handicraft industries as well as a religious center and Coptic diocese that contains several universities, schools and institutes.

Clashes between authorities and extremists in the city in March last year left one person dead and several others injured. The violence erupted when the authorities interrupted a demonstration protesting the move by the late President to offer exile to the ousted Shah of Iran.

Following rioting in Asyut, officials confined the funeral route for Sadat to a sports arena and parade grounds for security reasons Thursday.

As heads of state and royalty from all over the world announced that they would attend the Saturday funeral, a presidency spokesman said the funeral would be confined to Nasr Stadium and the adjacent parade grounds where Sadat was assassi

The stadium and parade area are in Nasr City, a northeastern suburh about five kilometers from the center.

The change of plans appeared to be an effort to insure the security of the many dignitaries, including U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig and fnrmer U.S. Presidents Gerald R. Ford, Jimmy Carter and Richard M. Nixon, who will be attending the funeral.

The spokeman said prayer services for Sadat were scheduled to be beld on the grounds of southern Cairo's Maadi Military Hospital where he died. The hospital, surrounded by concrete walls and iron fences, is heavily guarded.

Shazli claims opposition hand in killing

LONDON, Oct. 8 (R) — Exiled Egyptian general Saaeddin Shazli, head of the Egyptian National Front opposition movement, did nnt deny involvement in the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Shazli who was ambassador in London and Portugal, told Reuters in a telephone in view with London Broadcasting Company from Libya that be was not in a position to say whether his supporters were responsible for the assassinatinn Tuesday of Sadat. When pressed, he added: "I didn't say I deny. I am the head of the opposition and speak for all opposition. It is the Egyptian people who did it and they are part of the opposition. We as the opposition are responsible for it." He warned the new rulers that there will be more violence in Egypt if opposition demands, including freedom for political prisoners, were not met. "There was a state of siege in which freednm nf speech was denied. If we cannot establish democracy by true democratic means, we will be forced to use violence", he added.

It may be recalled that Gen. Sbazli had predicted as early as Sept. 10 that the fall of Sadat was nearing. Reacting to the largescale arrests of political apponents in Egypt, Gen. Shazli told pressmen in Algiers that the current wave nf arrests in Egypt marked "the beginning of the end of President Anwar Sadat's regime". This campaign of repressinn, which comes just after President Sadat's trip tn the United States and the visit to Cairo of the Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin shows the weakness of the regime, he said. He then predicted that rather than "decimate the opposition", the arrests would backfire and strengthen it for a showdown with the Egyptian leader. Gen. Shazli, 60, said his organization was independent and got nn funds from Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi. But it had moral support from Libya. Algeria, Syria, South Yemen and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).he said. The general has lived in several countries since leaving Egypt after President Sadat visited Israel in 1977. The radio statinn said it telephoned him at his residence in Tripoli.

Sudan expects to face war with Libya

BEIRUT, Oct. 8 (AP) — President Jaffar Numeiri of Sudan has warned that war with Libya was "a possibility" if Libyan attacks nn Sudanese villages near the Chad border continued, a Lebanese magazine reported Thursday.

In an interview with the weekly Al-Hawadess, Numeiri was quoted as saying: 'Of course the possibility of war is there.' adding the Sudanese forces were capable of attacking Libyan troops "in Chad, Tripoli and Benghazi. We are ready for such a war and we know that it will be a guerrilla war which will be his (Qaddaff's) downfall." Numeiri's remarks came after reports that Libyan planes had bombed villages on the Sudan-Chad border in northwest Sudan. Two Libyan planes were downed by Sudanese ground forces after one such bombing raid late last month, according to reports from the Sudanese capital of Khartoum. "We have downed one of his planes which entered Sudan and if other planes try to enter, we will shoot them down also," Numeiri was quoted by the Paris-based Al -Hawadess as saying.

Numeiri charged that Libya had been secretly buying foodstuffs from Sudan and playing havoc with Sudan's economy. He further charged that its interventinn in Chad could have come only with the help of the Soviet

Numeiri added that Oaddafi was using the fact that U.S. Navy planes downed two Libyan jets over the Mediterranean late in August as a "pretext tn conclude a treaty with Moscow". Numeiri also denied reports that Egyptian troops were stationed in Sudan.

Egypt and Sudan recently patched up differences and Numeiri became Egypt's ally since the signing of the 1979 peace treaty between Egypt and Israel. The two countries recently concluded a joint defense pact.

Numeiri said there were advisers from "10 different countries present now in Libya," hut be did nnt name the countries. He alleged that Qaddafi was trying to "use Sudanese working in Libya to recruit Arab students for military training."

"We know how nur war with Libya would turn nut and I dn not reveal any secrets when I say that we can create problems for Libya in any nf its towns or villages by using Sudanese who live there," Numeiri warned.

Decision on MX silos denied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (R) - A Pentagon official said Thursday that despite statements by the Reagan administration, no firm decision has been made to put America's new nuclear missile, the MX, in existing silos built for older missiles. The official, Col. Randy MacDonald, a deputy to the Defense Department's director of offensive and space systems, declined to comment when asked whether his statement represented a shift m administration policy.

President Ronald Reagan announced last week that 100 of the accurate and powerful new missiles would be built and some of them would be put in rebuilt Titan or Minuteman missile silos while other options for later deployment were studied.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee Monday that the decision was final and Reagan would not reconsider his rejection of a controversial plan to shunt the MX missiles among thousands of desert shelters to try in confuse the Soviet Union.

But Col. MacDonald said Thursday that no firm decision had been made to base the MX temporarily in silos. This leaves the United States withnut a firm plan for deployment of any of the MX missiles, as it studies various possibilities, such as launching them from large aircraft.

In congressional hearings this week, Weinberger faced harsh criticism from advocates of the desert hasing scheme, who charged that putting mohile MX in silos, even specially hardened ones, would leave it vulnerable to a Soviet first strike.

Among the critics was Sen. John Tower. chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who said he had been briefed by the administration and told that at least 36 MX missiles would be placed in Titan missile silos. Weinberger told the committee Monday that extra concrete and steel could make the silos tough enough to withstand a Soviet first strike, althnugh be said this was nuly a temporary solution. Col. MacDonald said, however, that it will take at least a year to complete studies on whether it is feasible to base MX missiles in

More senators support Reagan's stand on AWACS assassination of Sadat." The president is not

By Susan I. Gray Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 - The House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committer voted 28-8 Wednesday against the administration's plans to sell U.S. AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia hut President Reagan gained ground on the issue in the Senate.

A house vote against the sale was considered a foregone conclusion. The main battle over the Airborne Warning And Control System (AWACS) planes - Rengan's most significant foreign policy test to date — is being fought in the Senate. The house floor vote on the resolution to bar the sale is scheduled for Oct. 14. Both houses of Congress vote to block the sale by Oct. 30 or it goes ahead.

Wednesday's vote was postponed one day due to Tuesday's assassination in Cairo of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Supporters of the AWACS sale argued after Sudat's death that it was more important than ever to befriend Saudi Arabia and to support President Reagan's foreign policy. Defending the AWACS sale. Committee Chairman Clement Zablocki D-Wisc., said, "It complements U.S. foreign policy in the area, reaffirms the U.S. commitment to a comprehensive Middle East peace and recognizes Saudi Arabia's constructive role in Middle East politics."

Strong support for the president's proposal also came from Paul Findley R-Ill., Who called the approval of the sale essential to President Reagan's position as leader of the Middle East peace process. Reagan met 43 Republican senators at the White House to appeal for their support, "I need you, the country and the world need you on this decision," he told them.

After hearing Reagan's appeal, Senator Alan Simpson switched from the opposition ranks to support of the sale. A similar switch occurred Tuesday when Senator Orrin changed his position after meeting with Reagan. In addition, five previouslyuncommitted senators declared Wednesday they would back the president. All five bad been considered likely to take that position. They were John Warner, Jeremiah Depton, Richard Lugar, Strom Thursmond, Harry

F. Byrd, and Gordon J. Humphrey. Sen. Simpson, said afterward that he would support the sale because he had been convinced it was "in the best interests of the United States. Simpson said that in appealing for support, Reagan did not mention the using that in any form." Simpson told reporters after the meeting. Senate majority whip Ted Stevens of Alaska said the subject of Sadar's death and the bearing it might have on the AWACS sale was, indeed, a prime topic of discussion. Asked what Reagan said at the session, Stevens told reporters, "Ynu can write the dialogue yourselves, it's pretty obvious that be needs support." Asked if he thought Reagan might be able to persuade a majnrity of the Senate to support him on the sale, Stevens said: "I really don't know. I'm totally undecided myself." An administration spokesman said Tuesday the assassination "increases the urgency' of the sale. Prior to Reagan's meeting with the Republican Senators, Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would address the senators both as president and as the leader of the Republican Party. "He feels the AWACS sale is of critical importance and he is making an appeal to the Republican Senators who control the Senate." Speakes said, in the first indication that on this subject the president would use a partisan argument to try to keep the Republicans in Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. and Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called for a slowdown on congressional action on the sale to avoid a misstep in the Middle East while the impact of Sadat's assassination is assessed. But that idea was quickly dismissed by chief White House spokesman David Gergen. "In the president's view, this tragedy in no way lessens the urgency" of the sale," Gergen said. "It increases the urgency." Gergen refused to explain that reasoning, saying,"We do not believe that today, a day of tragedy, is the proper occasion to enter into a full-scale debate about the implication of that death for the sale. "The president plans to go forward with the sale," be Byrd said hefore Sadat's assassination that Congress is in danger of unsettling Middle East stability either way it votes on AWACS. After Sadat was killed Tuesday, Byrd urged the Senate to "take a step back ... until we see how things fall into place." Baker said he doubts the assassinatinn will affect the sale but agreed with Byrd that we should place a moratorium on worrying about it "imtil the effect of the Sadat slaying on Middle East stability becomes clearer.

Russia, Syria to strengthen cooperation

DAMASCUS, Oct. 8 (R) - The presidents of the Soviet Union and Syria Thursday pledged continued close ties hetween their countries in an exchange of cables to mark the first anniversary of their friendship and cooperation treaty.

Syrian President Hafez Assad described the treaty as a dependable base for confronting Israeli attacks and strengthening cooperation between Moscow and Damascus for a just and lasting peace in the Middle East. In his cables, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev called the treaty an effective factor for consolidating the position of nationalist forces in the Arah world "which is confronting the conspiracies of imperialism and Zionism."

U.S. murder plot alleged by Libya

LINTTED NATIONS, Oct. 8 (AP) -Libyan Foreign Minister Abdulati Al-Obeidi charged in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly Wednesday that the United States is plotting to kill Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi. Al-Obeidi said that under President Ronald Reagan, "physical liquidation and terrorism have become one of the pillars" of American policy. Al-Obeidi alleged that the United States was behind some past assassinations. "The latest act of terrorism on the part of the new American administration, which has been revealed by the American press and confirmed by some officials, is the existence of a plot to assassinate Qaddafi."

Armenian held in Switzerland

GENEVA. Oct. 8 (R) — Justice authorities Wednesday remanded a 23year-old Armenian for trial oo charges of murdering a Turkish consulate employee here last summer and carrying explosives with criminal intent. The defendant, identified only as Mardiros J. in line with Swiss court practice, denied the murder charge and siad another Armenian commando had killed the Turki in a Geneva street June 9.

But prosecutor Raymond Foex told the court Mardires had earlier admitted the killing and only changed his version after being visited in prison last month by a representative of the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia (ASALA). The date of the trial has not been fixed.

Since the arrest of Mardiros, a group calling itself the "June Ninth Movement" has claimed responsibility for several bomb explosioos in Switzerland. The latest occurred last Saturday outside the Geneva Justice Department. In a communique issued in Beirut last August, the "June Ninth Movement' said it would attack Swiss institutions "as long as Armenian combatants are held in Swiss prisoos."

Kyprianou to hold talks with Waldheim

UNITED NATIONS, Oct. 8 (AP) — Cypriot Foreign Minister Nicos A. Rolandis said bere Wednesday that President Spyros Kyprianou would arrive Monday for a three or four-day stay in New York and hold talks with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on the latter's ideas for settling the Cyprus

Rolandis told reporters at a luncheon he gave for them that Cyprus would ask that the U.N. General Assembly, now scheduled to end its 36th session Dec. 15, should instead leave it open at that time and resume it later if need be to take up the Cyprus question. He said that on the basis of talks with nonaligned countries, he was sure the proposal would get the necessary majority.

Rolandis, a Greek Cypriot, said the ideas for a settlement that the Turkish Cypriots had put forward in intermittent, U.N.-monitored intercommunal talks were "minimal proposals-simply a repetition of the old partitional constitutional arrangements" advanced hefore. "Apparently in the wake of the Turkish proposals," he went on, "the secretary-general felt it might be good for him to intervene.

The secretary-general explained to me that now the gap is so wide that if we leave things the way they are, they will never come to fruition." "We are not negative," the minister said. "We are constructive. But we have not yet reached a final position as to what be said to us."

Rolandis said he and the president would meet with Waldheim next Monday and then it would be up to Cyprus' council of ministers to take a position on it.

Detainees shifted to eastern Morocco

RABAT, Oct. 8 (AFP) - The imprisoned first secretary of Morocco's opposition Socialist Union of Popular Forces (USFP), Abdurrahmin Bouahid, and two members of the party politburo jailed with him last month, have been moved 450 kms from the capital, according to relatives.

The three detainees were moved at dawn Wednesday to Missour in eastern Morocco without warning to their families or lawyers, who had appealed last Monday against the one-year sentence imposed Sept. 24 on the USFP leaders for criticizing King Hassan II's Western Sahara policy. Bouahid's family said that he and his colleagues were thought to have been placed under some form of house arrest rather than transferred to another prison. The move makes much more difficult any contact with the rest of the USFP leadership as the party faces further confrontation with the government.

The 14 USFP members of parliament Wednesday announced their intention to withdraw from the 267-seat assembly in protest at a law extending their term of office from four to six years.

Camp David accords crumbling, Arafat says

chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, declared Wednesday night the world is witnessing the crumhling of the Camp David agreement "with the fall of one of its symbois' - Anwar Sadat.

Arafat, a sworn enemy of Sadat, arrived Wednesday at an embarrassing time for China as it mourns Sadat and swears to support the Palestinian cause. The PLO chief told a welcoming banquet in the Great Hall of the People, "Today, we are witnessing the beginning of the failure of the Camp David agreement with the fall of one of its symbols. We have believed in that before. We also have been convinced the hight of Egypt will not last long."

Arafat will have four days of talks with top Chinese leaders about the Middle East. He is being accorded virtually all the honors befitting a head of state and colorful silk banoers are strung across Peking's main avenues to welcome him. He is expected to ask for increased aid from China which has supplied political, material and unspecified military aid in the past. Copies of his speech later were made available to reporters by the PLO, "We are sure the Egyptian people are committed to the national cause of which Palestine is the heart," he said in his speech. "The Egyptian people are great people and the heroic Egyptian Army will never capitulate and will never give up Jerusalem," he said.

Speaking later with reporters, Arafat denounced both Israel and the United States. We face the huge, harbaric American and Israeli powers...but we are with the current of history," be said. In his speech he said the world faces "the dangerous strategic alliance between Israel and U.S. imperialism."

Thatcher visits Afghan refugees

NASIR BAGH, Pakistan, Oct. 8 (Agencies) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher got a look at Muslim life Thursday when she entered a "purdah" or "veiled" meeting with several hundred Afghan refugee women bere.

Males, including her husband and their Scotland Yard bodyguards, were kept away from the women-only tent where security was provided by four policewomen packing revolvers at Nasir Bagh Refugee Camp, northwest Pakistan. "The women asked Mrs. Thatcher to provide their busbands with sophisticated arms to fight the Soviets with," said Mrs. Duri Shahawar, who interpreted for the British leader.

Mrs. Thatcher ignored the request hut announced, as she had moments hefore to their menfolk, another $4 million in humanitarian aid for Afghan refugees in Pakistan, Britain had earlier granted $11.6 million.

Lowering their veils, the Afghan women told of their escape across the border and the "Jihad" or the Holy struggle their husbands and sons continue to wage against an estimated 85,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan, Mrs. Shahawar told the Associated Press. The British prime minister, warming to the audience squatting on carpets before her, offered some old fashiooed, homely advice: "I hope that you look after the household affairs and let the men fight against the Russians for freedom," she quoted Mrs. Thatcher as saying. Earlier in Islamahad, Mrs. Thatcher discussed the Afghanistan situation during wide-ranging talks Thursday with Pakistani President Muhammad Zia Ul-Haq. The two leaders also discussed Pakistan's relations with the superpowers and with neighhoring India, as well as hilateral and regional matters, reliable sources said.

"My personal feeling is that if the Soviets suddenly left Afghanistan, there would be civil war," said the 27-year-old doctor. In another development, a British woman doctor who spent three months inside an Afghan village controlled by resistance fighters predicted Wednesday a civil war if the Soviets suddenly withdrew from Afghanistan. Jeane Frossard, of St. Peterport, Guernsey, said in Islamabad that rebel factions continued to feud among themselves, particularly in areas not directly threatened by the Soviets.

"My personal feeling is that if the Soviets suddenly left Afghanistan, there would be civil war," said the 27-year-old doctor. .

As oil demand nosedives

EEC refineries plunge into crisis freezing of BRUSSELS, Oct. 8 (R) — Sharply reduced demand for petrol and other oil products has plunged Western Europe's huge refining industry into crisis and closures and joh losses are planned.

"The point has been reached where companies engaged in oil refining will be obliged to close a significant number of refineries." says a report to member governments this month from the European Economic Community (EEC) Commission.

EEC refineries are working at only 60 percent of capacity compared with 80 percent in 1973 and the oil industry sees no dramatic recovery in years to come.

Demand is down partly as a result of temporary factors, chiefly recession. But high pricea have also spurred measures that will have a lasting impact in full-saving and the growing use of gas, coal and nuclear power.

Meanwhile, the pattern of consumption has changed. Demand for petrol and other high-grade refined products can be expected to pick up while the requirement for heavy fuel oil, which older refineries are designed to produce in large volume, is in permanent

Fuel oil, burned in industry and electric power stations, is most facing the challenge from coal and nuclear energy.

The EEC report urges that refineries be upgraded to concentrate on petrol and other light products such as naptha, a chemicals industry raw material, but adds that such measures will not save the refining industry unless accompanied by large-scale closures.

It says 200 million tons of EEC processing capacity are surplus to requirements and that "the greater part of the necessary adjustment, perhaps as much as 150 million tons on it, will have to take the form of closing entire refineries." the oil industry agrees and shutdowns are already starting.

Walter Kirsten, managing director of British Petroleum's oil international division. said in London this week that stern Europe as a whole, including France, had one billion ton of refining capacity "and we think we need something just above 600 million longterm." BP is closing its big isle of grain refinery in Britain. Another British oil company,

Burmah, intends to close a plant at Ellesmere

British trades unions say 3,500 refinery workers have already been sacked and 10,000 more fear for their jobs. Dr. Kirsten told reporters: "I have to say that other refineries in other countries will follow. Something must and will happen in France and Germany.'

The EEC Commission said the trend set by companies such as BP should be encouraged. adding the EEC budget might find moncy for job-creation schemes for redundant workers.

Ironically, its initiative to help the refining industry follows a consistent campaign to cut cil's share of EEC energy from 50 to 40 percent by 1990. EEC consumption of refined products is thread, early n 13 percent on levels in 1973 when the Arabide embargo sent oil prices sourceg.

Paul Hairy, a university of the Belgian oil industry, said recently refineries in Belgium faced possible bankruptey. But the Belgian industry employing some 10,000 people and expecting to lose about $125 million this year, is not among the EEC's largest or hardest hit. EEC figures show large Dutch and Italian refineries working at little over 50 percent of capacity.

They have traditionally been major exporters of refined products and their overseas markets have fallen away sharply as rival refining industries grew up elsewhere, particularly in north Africa.

Party MPs denounce Thatcherism

LONDON, Oct. 8 (R) - An influential former cabinet minister Thursday joined an attack on Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher from her own Conservative Party ranks, calling for a change in economic policies.

The attack by Geoffrey Rippon, listed by political sources as a possible successor to Mrs. Thatcher, came two days after blistering criticism of her anti-inflationary monetarist policies by former Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath.

At the same time, 13 Conservative members of parliament urged the government to shift gear or risk losing the next general election, due by May 1984.

In their separate criticism of Mrs. Thatcher's policies the 13 Conservative Mps said: "No one can deny that in the last few years we have come close to abandoning our traditional approach to politics in favor of the belief that our job was to use certain type of economic analysts on the nation — to become a pressure group for a particular economic theory.

Rippon speaking to Conservative students at Cambridge University, called on young members of the party to stand up and fight given no signs salitching strategy. She insists the only way to solve Britain's economic ills is to fight inflation by curbing the supply of money and restricting government spending through strict monetarist principles.

Rippon was environment minister in Heath's government in the early 1970s and negotiated Eritain's 1973 entry to the European Econoteic Community (EEC), He said the Consentative Party's annual conference next week or ald be of special significance because it would privide almost the last chance to change the government's policies before the next general election.

Rippon described Mrs. Thatener's current concept of numetarism as excessively simplistic, deeph irrational, inherently divisive and altimately destructive,

"Faced with an unacceptable level of unemployment, aggregated by high interest rates that teel public expenditure, penalize private enterprise and stiffe investment, we must be a a change of direction." he said.
"Now is the time for the samper generation. of our pasts to stand up and fight for the principles of aradinomal conservation right across the board, mostly and nationally."

France OKs food prices

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AFP) - The French cabinet has approved the move to freeze the price of services and of some food products, while limiting rent rises and holding down some investment expenses in a bid to control

The Socialist government is intending to defend the new value of the devalued franc and to prevent excessive price rises from soaking up the benefits of devaluation on external trade.

The government, which has said it opposes the European Economy Community's policy of compensation amounts to iron out currency differences in the agricultural market. has decided to raise producer prices by 0.5 percent to compensate for the devaluation announced Sunday.

The cabinet also reaffirmed its desire to maintain buying power, and to reduce inequality by helping the poorly paid and ensuring a better share-out of work.

Economy minister Jacques Delors, who earlier this week announced measures to hold downt the prices of basic foods, Wednesday reaffirmed his belief in price freedom, while stressing the temporary nature of the latest moves.

The six-month price freeze affects services which have become markedly more expensive over the summer. The price of bread, milk, sugar, margarine and coffee is to be frozen for three months, but the government has rejected calls by some unions for a freeze on broader range of food including meat. fruit and vegetables. Rent rises will be limited in proportion with the increase in construction costs.

The cabinet has also decided to delay investment expenditure of 15,000 million francs envisaged in the budget. The money will be used during the year in accordance with the development of the economy and the requirements of the policy to boost employ-

Bundesbank cuts interest by 1%

FRANKFURT, Oct. 8 (AFP) - From Friday the Wesi German central bank'sinterest on credit against securities is reduced from 12 to 11 percent, the CentralBank said Thursday,

The reduction, comes following the mark's uprating last weekend within the European Monetary System (EMS), and is nearly seven months after the February 19 jump from nine to 12 percent, which was part of a general tightening of money supply.

The Bundesbank discount rate remains unchanged at 7.5 percent, a figure set on May 2, 1980.

Sequel to Sadat's death

Japan sees delay in Suez deal

TOKYO, Oct. 8 (R) - President Anwar Sadat's death is expected to delay Japanese contracts to enlarge the Suez Canal and build an iron processing plant near Alexanderia, Japanesebusinessmen said Thursday.

Both projects were followed closely by Sadat, who died at a time when Japan's trade and economic links with Egypt were expanding rapidly. A spokesman for Japan's Penta Ocean Construction Company said Japan and Egypt probably would bave to delay a $200 million contract for second-stage expansion of the Suez Canal.

The contract, financed by a yendenominated credit, was 10 have been signed during Sadat's state visit to Japan next month, he told reporters. The work would be a follow-up to a $1.3 billion project that opened the canal to supertankers for the first time last December. The five-year first phase to widen and deepen the canal was completed with assistance from Japan, the World Bank and Western Europe.

A spokesman for Kobe Steel told reporters that the start of work on a 20 billion yen ($87 million) contract to build the directreduction iron processing factory east of Alexandria was also expected to be delayed. The contract for the factory, which Sadat considered essential for Egypt's economic development, was signed only last month by the Cairo government and a consortium of three Japanese firms, Kobe Steel, Nippon Kokan and Toyo Menka. The spokesman declined to estimate how long the contracts for the two big projects might be delayed.

Officials at Japan's International Trade and Industry Ministry (MITI) said, meanwhile, that the United States was abandoning, at least temporarily, tentative plans to supply Japan with Alaskan oil in view of uncertainties in the Middle East. They told reporters that the U.S. had discussed the possibility of shipping to Japan part of the 1.6 million harrels of oil per day produced in Alaska. The MITI officials said it was premature for Japan to decide at this stage on an earlier Egyptian request for an increase to 45 billion yen ($195 million) in Japanese aid for the financial year ending next March. Japan supplied credits totaling 37.5 billion yen ($163 and the second of the first test the effect of a strike and specified and

It says a great deal for Egypt's structural stability as a state that the sudden and horrifying removal of its president from the scene was followed by such deliberate, constitutional transition of power.

As the constitution provides, it was not Vice President Hosni Mubarak who took over, but the speaker of the People's Assembly, Mr. Sufi Abu Talib.

Vice President Hosni Mubarak's move into the Presidential office will thus be made according to the letter of the law: Under Mr. Abu Talib's temporary presidency, he obtained nomination from a third of the members of the Assembly and the seconding of another third. As he is the only candidate, the task of the Assembly in regards to this issue is accomplished, and there remains the matter of his confirmation by referendum, which is to be held next Monday.

As the leaders of the Egyptian state move behind the coffin of their departed president tomorrow, accompanied by representatives of many friendly governments, the Egyptian people can take a quiet pride in the resilience and durability which their institutions of government have exhibited in this challenging period.

And it must be remembered that the late president played an important part in ensuring strength and stability for Egypt's institutions, during the eleven years he

Obote's army lacks discipline

By T.R. Lansner

The Uganda government is considering a British proposal that a Commonwealth training force be sent here to help instil discipline in the country's lawless army, whose soldiers are accused of murder and Britain's proposal, government sources say, was made last month. just before President Milton Obote was to travel to Melbourne to attend the Commonwealth conference. The urgency of the approach faded when Obote decided not to attend the conference. There has been no official explanation for his decision.

Members of the government are adamant that it was not prompted by the events of a decade ago, when Idi Amin staged a coup while Obote was attending the Commonwealth conference in Singapore. One source close to the president says pains in the back and neck made the president unfit for travel. A Commonwealth approach, diplomats here say, would allow Britain and other concerned nations to help control the Uganda army without giving the appearance of one particular nation siding with the Obote

At a press conference last month, Paulo Muwanga, Uganda's vice-president and minister for defense, complained that Britain had not responded to repeated requests for military training assistance.

The Commonwealth force. likely to number about 100 men. may be too little and too late to The indiscipline of the army and lack of respect for the rule of law were the main topics of a four-Obote, top government ministers, opposition politicians and Uganda's religious leaders.

A document signed by the religious leaders, who had requested the meeting, was made available to journalists by diplomats. Entitled "tn Search of beginning to ease, according to a senior official of Peace and Development in our the United Nations High Commission for Refugees. Peace and Development in our Nation Uganda", it says the security situation had gone from had to worse under Obote's regime.

The 10-point statement is an indictment of army misconduct and the action of some officials of Ohote's ruling party. "The Uganda you lead is bleeding to death," the document says.

"Once (soldiers) are sent to an area, they start shooting innocent people without discrimination. Property is looted and many used to do in the past, and the fact that "peace" has civilians desert their homes in order to save their lives.

Roadhlocks have become places of torture, especially when mounted hy army men. What worries our people more than anything else is the indifference and said. Already three UNHCR refugee camps in spirit of unconcern so far being Somalia have been closed and the number of exhibited by the government, refugees in other camps has dropped. even when serious tensions are evidently continuing to huild up."

Pentagon war games yield 'disturbing' results

By Peter Pringle

WASHINGTON -Secret Pentagon war games suggest that a conventional war in Europe would degenerate into a nuclear conflict on Day Five. Day Five, according to the games, is when the Warsaw Pact forces would break through NATO's forward defenses positions. If nuclear weapons were not used, the games suggest, NATO's conventional forces would last only until Day 24, when NATO's defenses would collapse.

This dismal picture of the possible Allied response to a Warsaw Pact invasion of Europe is painted, according to Pentagon sources, in a stillclassified supplement to the joint chiefs of staff

"Military Posture Statement" for 1982. This is a political as well as a military document, published at this time of the year before discussions on the defense hudget.

When the generals wrote up their secret war games they called the results "disturbing." Such an assessment does not appear in the unclassified version, which simply mentions that these games have been played and the results "underscore the need for NATO to improve its capability to withstand a conventional attack."

The war games were set in 1986. The generals pretended a U.S.-Soviet conflict had been raging for 60 days before the European war, stretching forces on both sides. They also gave the NATO forces an uncertain advantage, assuming that all the extra equipment and manpower planned for 1986 would be in place and that the regular NATO forces would be augmented by all available French forces.

Neither assumption can be taken for granted in the present political and economic climate. The U.S. taxpayer may not be prepared to pay for the increases planned and the French forces may not be immediately available. The games were stopped on Day 24 when NATO was unable to maintain a cohestve defense."

The generals assessed the Warsaw Pact forces had a "significant advantage" in all weapons systems and that they would have the opportunity for "full exploitation" of their success. They also noted that commitment of the French forces was critical to NATO's defense. (ONS)

Clouds gather over French economic policy

By Robin Smyth

PARIS -

NAIROBI -

After four months of change, excitement and confusion French socialism turned a hlander face to the world from the Elysee Palace hallroom last month. In his first presidential press conference François Mitterrand had not a rough word for anyone except those foreign powers in need of a reminder that Paris will recognize no restricted areas in France refuses all prohibitions. Mitterrand declared, which won him the headline "A Socialist De Gaulle" in France -Soir.

Unfriendly commentators saw him as a "rosewater Socialist" blandly cutting corners and underestimating the perils which his first months in power have strewn in his path. The "realists" among his supporters consider that his conciliatory tone on the home front and the concessions he dropped to alarmed employers are much overdue.

Editorials in the Socialist daily Le Matin and weekly Le Nouvel Observateur have been warning the president to stop innovating and start proving that reforms can work. Jean Daniel, director of Le Nouvel Observateur, thought that the issues were too grave to be dealt with in the customary press conference and the president should have decided control a deteriorating situation. to make a solemn address to the nation.

The realists fear that the government has got itself involved in a conflict between Socialist principles and a hazardous economic policy which can hour meeting recently attended hy only succeed by mustering exceptional capitalist Breaking unemployment, which will soon pass two million, is Mitterrand's main objective. He aims to do this by reflating the economy to achieve 3 percent growth next year. The motor of this reflation is higher spending in the shops by people at the bottom end of the wage scale who have been given increases hy the Socialist government. Higher investment by employers is essential to meet the demand and fight off foreign competition.

But how can employers be expected to invest with confidence if they are treated as "the class enemy" and shaken by nationalizations and wealth tax projects? Mitterrand was the picture of serenity when he appeared before 400 journalists grilling under the television lights and chandeliers of the Elysee hallroom. He pledged that if employers invested they would escape the wealth tax, and he gave an assurance that there would be no more nationalizations until the country had been consulted again.

He held out the advantages of working with a stable long-term regime — "I am here for seven years" - and in an atmosphere of social peace.

Reports filtering out of cabinet meetings suggest that the leading realists in the government -Finance Minister Jacques Delors and Planning Minister Michel Rocard - have been fighting doggedly to limit the scope of nationalizations. They point to the heavy burden of paying at least $7,000 million into the pockets of shareholders of the five industrial giants to be nationalized without any of it going toward improving industry or stimulating committee's findings.

For Mitterrand nationalization is a symbol of the Socialist Party's helief in its mission. If nationalizations were shelved Mitterrand's Socialist experiment, which he now calls Radical Social Democracy: might look too like watered-down capitalism to appeal to the Socialist rank and file let alone their Communist allies.

Nationalization, he told the press conference. was the only way of preventing the companies being swallowed up hy multinationals. And the 36 hanks to be nationalized would be in a more generous mood to employers struggling against hankruptcy,

As things are, the government fears it may face a first rebellion hy some members of its large National Assembly majority who find the nationalization program too restricted. Pierre Mauroy, the prime minister, is preparing to resort to Article 40 of the constitution which forbids amendments placing new hurdens on the hudget without corresponding sources of revenue.

Mitterrand knows that clouds are gathering over his economic policy. As he admitted, his target of 3 percent growth next year will be hard to reach. Inflation is moving above 14 percent. Investments have plummeted this year and there is no sign as yet of consumption picking up. The trade balance is heavily in the red. So far the Socialist government can place the blame for this record on its predecessors. But this excuse will soon lose its validity.--

Ogaden refugees begin to return home agencies over the total number of refugees in the monitors accepted," he admitted, "but their role is being explained to the camp commanders and the country. Peters said this thorny issue was likely to be resolved by the end of October when figures will refugees, and whereas they were originally looked be published by a special census-taking committee upon as policemen, they're now accepted as people who are there to make sure assistance reaches its composed of Somali government officials, U.N. representatives, donor countries and voluntary

Some of the reports about "food diversion" in the Somali refugee camps had been based upon misunderstandings about the "Food for Work" program organized by the UNHCR, Peters said. Refugees who helped relief teams to load or unload supplies and assist in their distribution had been rewarded with extra supplies, some of which they had sold openly in the market for cash with which to purchase other commodities such as meat and veg-

Commenting on the refugee situation in the Sudan, he said, conditions there were "pretty stable compared to the crisis we have had in the past in places like Somalia."

"In the Sudan, the refugees have been there for 16 years, particularly those from Ethiopia in the eastern part of the country, and they are in the process of being settled."

Altogether there were 520,000 refugees throughout the Sudan - most of them Ethiopians or Eritreans. There were 110,000 refugees from Uganda in the southern Sudan and Peters conceded that reports that they were being successfully repatriated had been prematurely optimistic.

The Hong Kong authorities are so worried by the growth of criminally-linked illegal immigration that an extra 850 Gurkha troops are being recruited in Nepal to reinforce the British garrison patrolling entry points from China. The racket began last October, when Hong Kong ended what was known as its "touch hase" policy. Until then, any illegal immigrant who succeeded in crossing the harbed wire fence along the border, evading British patrols and reaching urban areas of

Hong Kong was allowed to settle legally. Now not only are all those who are caught sent hack to China hut no one is allowed to work without an identity card. Employers can be fined $180 if they hreach the rule. Police have powers to stop anyone in the street and ask to see his identity card. As a result of this get-tough policy, the number of illegal immigrants caught by British patrols has dropped from 245 a night last year to 26. However, a flourishing husiness linked to Hong Kong's criminal Triad gangs has sprung up. Chases by British helicopters and hovercraft are becoming common. Several people were killed recently when a speed-boat loaded with illegal immigrants crashed into a British patrol boat.

'Our aim is to catch the aiders and abettors," said squadron leader Brian Sharp, who commands a helicopter squadron. "But they tend not to surrender. What they have started to do is drop off the illegal immigrants, either by throwing them overboard or landing them and then trying to escape.

We are now getting people from all over China, including the north Some of them expect their relatives in Hong Kong to pay the sumugglers. Often the relatives don't want them and shop them to the police." Among defenses now being used are helicopters which approach the speed-boats at low level and switch on powerful lights to hlind the speed-boat drivers, Royal Marines in fast inflatable boats, and thermal imagers which can see a boat three miles away and a swimming man more than a mile away by sensing heat differences.

A "Berlin Wall" in reverse along the land frontier is being extended across mud flats to the west of Hong Kong. But the poverty stricken immigrants who used to clamber through the fence or slither across the mud flats on homemade mud skis are now giving way to wealthier immigrants taking the Triad maritime routes to Hong Kong.

Two naval hovercraft hased in Hong Kong are proving ineffective in amhushing the smugglers. "Despite the fact that they can do 50 knots, they can't turn quickly enough, and they can't go to sea in more than Force Two winds," said Captain Andrew Waugh, who is in charge of the Royal Navy in Hong Kong. Five 25-year-old patrol boats are also too slow and are being replaced by faster boats.

Nowadays, two million people come on pilgrimage every year. To the rest of Muslims all over the world, the four days starting with the Day of Sacrifice, i.e. the day after Arafat, are days of celebration. They are termed "the Feast of Sacrifice."

Every Muslim who can afford it is encouraged to sacrifice a lamb or a go at in commemoration of Abraham's action when he was about to sacrifice his son, Ismael, in response to Allah's command, before Allah, out of His grace, substituted a large lamb for the submissive son. It should be stressed here that the sacrifice is not obligatory. It is something every Muslim is encouraged to do, if he can reasonably afford

The meat of the sacrificed animal should be disposed of, ideally, in this fashion: one third is to be given away to charity; one third is made into presents to relatives and friends; and one third is kept for one's own family. There is, however, no rigidity about this division.

Over the four days, people exchange visits and congratulations. The occasion is a great exercise of public relations which aims to cement the ties of the Muslim community in every village, town and city. As always, Islam links all religious occasions on the practical life of the community. Thus, as all Muslims celebrate the feast of sacrifice pilgrimage requires a much larger significance. It is no longer a grand occasion merely for the two million people who take part in it. It becomes an occasion in which all Muslims share. As Muslims exchange visits their discussion always comes back to the subject of pilgrimage. Those who have not been on pilgrimage ask their friends who have been more fortunate about their experience. You always have the question: What are the pilgrims doing

Life of the Prophet - 27 Extradition requested

When the Prophet invited his companions to leave Makkah and immigrate to Abessynia to escape the repression they were subjected to by Quraish, eighty-three men and women went on their way, seeking refuse in that far away country. They constituted a large section of the Muslim community. That was a shrewd tactical move by the Prophet which removed the fuse from a potentially dangerous situation. Those who were left in Makkah did not, to all appearances, constitute any threat to its social order. Hence, any call to eliminate the Muslims would not, in that tribal society, have received the sort of semi-unanimous approval required for carrying it out.

Quraish, however, was utterly dismayed that the Muslims should escape the tyranny and find peace and security in their new place of abode. A meeting was called to discuss the situation, it was resolved to send a delegation to Al-Najashi, the ruler of Abessynia, with the request that he should deport the Muslims and send them back Amr ibn Al-Aas and Abdullah ibn Abi Rabie ah were chosen for that mission. Amr. in particular, was well known for his diplomatic skills. He carried with him many gifts with which he sought to make the atmosphere favorable at Al-Najashi's court when be made his request.

Amr's plan was to present every one of the patriarchs who attended Al-Najashi's court with a fine gift of animal hide. Having thus bribed them. Amr explained his mission saying: "A few drop-outs of our people have arrived in your land. Having rebelled against our religion, they did not adopt yours. Instead, they have come out with a new trend, unknown to you or to us. We have come as representatives of our leaders to request the King to extradite these fugitives. When we make this request to the King we hope you would counsel him to grant our request without going to the trouble of calling them in and speaking to them. You would undoubtedly agree that their own people are better equipped to judge them and their creed well."

All the patriarchs promised Amr and his friend their support. Thus the ground was prepared so that Al-Najashi's decision would be in favor of Amr and his delegate Abdullah. When the two were admitted into the court, they presented the king with a previous gift of superb camel hide. To him, that was the finest gift they could present. He was so pleased with it that he immediately asked them to place their request.

Nothing was more loathsome to the Quraish delegation than that the Al-Najashi should call the Muslims in to present their case. Hence, they emphasized that the Muslims did not opt for Christianity. Al-Najashi's own religion. They also stressed that they were making their request on behalf of the fugitives' own parents and uncles who could not be expected, particularly in the tribal Arabian society, to subject them to any harm.

When they made their case, the patriarchs supported them, saying: "Certainly their people are the best equipped to judge them. Extradition is the proper course for the king to take in these circumstances."

Al-Najashi was very angry. He said, "A group of people who have sought my shelter, preferring me over everyone else will not be summarily judged. f shall call them in first and give them a chance to answer what these two have alleged about them. If f find these allegations to be true, f will extradite them. Otherwise, they will certainly enjoy

Pilgrims please Allah

The Hajj spirit crosses centuries; Medina, Makkah welcome faithfuls

By Raana Siddiqi

JEDDAH - Hajj is a holy duty unto Allah that every Muslim longs for. Jet planes were landing every two minutes in the last days before the ninth day of Dhul Hajja, the last month of the Muslim calendar. Ships twinkle in the harbor and pilgrim buses, vans and cars crowd the old route and the new highway to Makkah al Mukarramah.

If that first group of faithfuls wbo journeyed from Medina to Makkah covering the harsh terrain on camels, horses, and even on foot, could journey into time the sight in the Holy cities with a maze of roads, overpasses new hotels, busy shops and enlarged and improved facilities around the Harams would more than daze them.

If it is the holy duty of each Muslim to visit the House of God, the custodians of the House itself have for centuries put utmost efforts to make the visit as tranquil and easy as possible. With the number of pilgrims increasing each year, it was deemed necessary through the years to enlarge the Holy Mosque in Makkah, Omar bin Khattab, the second Caliph, was the first one to enlarge and illuminate the Mosque back in the 17th year of Hijra. The huilding and its surroundings have been expanded since then by successive caliphs and rulers in the course of centuries to offer more facilities to the wor-

The most improvement seems to have taken place in the past three decades in terms of physical comforts and security. Not one Hajj season goes by without the machinery going into motion to further improve the conditions and to facilitate the visitors during their stay in the Holy land. The increasing millions from all over the world are received, accommodated, transported and guided in their homage.

Although no one is looking for comfort when they come for Hajj, their minds are more at peace when they need not worry about carrying six months supply of food, clothing and medicines, and don't have to ration the water as the Hajjis bad to do even as recently as the mid and late 1940s.

Hassan Kabir remembers as a young boy the preparations and hustle and bustle of Hajj in the 1940s. His father, as the vice consul in Jeddah for the British Indian government, was greatly involved in the influx of Hajjis from the India-Pakistan suhcontinent. It was quite an operation, to bring the Hajjis on shore to the custom house which used to be where the clock now stands in downtown Jeddah. The journey then continued on camelback and sometimes by truck to Makkah. Hassan, now a senior business executive in Jeddah, recalls," I remember going with my father in the launches which went up to the ship to greet the pilgrims who were then transferred to Saudi Arabian sailboats to be delivered ashore."

The biggest concern of the Hajjis in those days, according to Hassan, was food provisions and half their higgage was made up of such items as rice, lentils, other unperishable foods and at times even livestock.

Today's jet-traveling Hajji can buy all th food be wants upon arrival in Jeddah not only of the fresh kind but in preservable cans and bottles and of all varieties.

In those years, camel caravans, and later trucks, transported the groups of Hajjis on narrow unpaved roads on their onward journey after arrival in Jeddah. Hassan Kabir, who as a child performed several Hajj, says"I recall vividly driving (they fortunately had a car) on the five or six-meter-wide road from Jeddah to Makkah with caravans and people on foot plodding in the sand, which flew in great gushes. Often the trucks were overturned when they took a sharp turn, it was common to lose track of the narrow road which often got covered completely as the sand moved across. Only the road sense of the guide or the camel driver rescued the

Hassan, however, feels that the pilgrims were prepared for discomfort and were not fussy even if they were very rich or powerful state rulers. He remembers vividly King Abdul Aziz and his companions on camelback chanting 'lab Baik', the original Hajj chant. "It was not a sight to forget — after all. how often do you see the powerful heads of state mingling with everybody," adds Has-

If journey from Jeddah to Makkah took three days, then think of the pilgrims coming from Medina for Hajj.

Ismail Hafzi, whose family roots are in Medina has taken his own journey for Hajj more recently, but remembers stories told by his parents of trips that took months of preparations and seven days travel time to Jeddah with an additional three days for reaching

"You had to guess about the roads and often got lost and went in circles," he said. *For this reason, people traveled in groups and carried all necessities to be ready for trouble of this kind.

Water was carried in 'girbahs' (skin water bags) and livestock was slaughtered and cooked, he said. Many stops had to be made on the way. There were no bridges in Abhor and Rabigh, in crossing these points the wait sometimes could be as long as three days. Pilgrims had to go down the valleys and find the way."

Since a visit to the Holy city of Medina is part of the itinerary of the Hajjis, the city is transformed from being quiet, and bustles with activity during the month preceding the Hajj. Medina is also on the route for pilgrims traveling overland from other Middle Eastern countries and the West. Many pilgrims stop there first to pay homage at the Holy Prophet's resting place.

"Nowadays," fsmail says, "pilgrims normally come for a short period in Medina and we do not see them before the month of Dhul Qidah bnt f remember that even 15 years ago they began arriving three to four months ahead. 'Daleels' looked after various nationalities. For instance al Attar family wus responsible for Iranians and Abu Jaud for the Indians. Now the government looks after most of the Hajjis.'

According to fsmail, the 'daleels' were fluent in many languages which they picked up due to their contacts with various nationalities of Hajjis.

Ismail recalls that, to meet the accommodation, shortage, his father would advise the family to make several rooms in their house available to the pilgrims and to say their prayers at home so that room could be made for the pilgrim guests to pray at the Prophet's Mosque.

"Most of the food in those days was brought by the pilgrims and a lot of it came from Egypt," says Ismail. He said laughingly, "many pilgrims still carry food unaware that there is no shortage of food in the Kingdom."

The physical surroundings in Medina', just as in Makkah, have greatly changed. With the expansion of the area in the Prophet's mosque, more than half a million people can now congregate at prayer times, Ismail was asked if the mass influx of Hajjis disrupted the daily life of the people of Medina. He replied with a conviction: "It is like the change of season that we know must come. We are prepared for it and do our best to welcome these

Smooth financial machine insures value of Nobel Prizes will soar

By Michael Metcalfe

STOCKHOLM (R) - Behind the facade of the Nobel Foundation, the institution controlling the fortunes of the prestige prizes, works a smooth financial machine. This year the foundation celebrates the 80th anniversary of the awards with a record one million dollars allocated to the five prizes under its direct financial control. The foundation is directly responsible for the money behind the awards in literature, peace, medicine, physics and chemistry while the sixth — for economics — receives its funds from the Swedish Central Bank. Foundation accountants who ensure the institution squares its books, say the 14 percent increase over the value of last year's prizes just about compensates for inflation. The prizes were started by-Swedish millionaire Alfred Nobel, the chemical engineer and inventor of dynamite. When he drew up his will in 1895, he decided to leave his capital to be invested in order to set up a fund, the annual interest of which forms the prize

In 1901, five years after Nobel's death and the first year in which the prizes were awarded, capital at the foundation's disposal was six million dollars. Interest at the time was $160,000 to be made available for the Latest foundation accounts show the market value of the fund's holdings at the end of 1980 stood at $50 million, while assets yielding interest totaled $40 million.

The way the foundation has steered its investments over the past 80 years is the crucial reason why the prizes are now managing to keep pace with inflation, the accountants

The foundation is governed by a six-man board of directors, which includes a chairman and deputy chairman appointed by the Swedish government. The other four are elected by the body's trustees.

The board is similar to any normal board of directors at an investment company, for example, and aims to get the most from its investments in order to gain the maximum profits, Swedish banking sources said. Baron Stig Ramel, executive director of the board, said in a recent interview that since f 953, when the foundation gained approval to invest more freely, the prizes have soared "During the 1970s, we increased the proportion of our investments in real estate purchases, though that decade brought problems steering the holdings through inflation," he

The foundation pursues a long-term policy of investment, which attaches a great deal of importance to real estate, short-term interest loans and shares.

Of the foundation's total investments at the end of 1980, about 12 percent was in real estate, 44 percent in shares and 44 percent in bonds and loans, says the chief accountant at the foundation's office in Stockholm.

Apart from Sweden, shares are invested in the United States only, although the foundation has held shares in Britain and Japan. It has a small amount of bonds tied up in Steriing and has bonds invested in West German marks and Norwegian crowns. The rising value of the U.S. dollar against other correncies has helped to increase the worth of the foundation's holdings in the U.S. by more than 100 percent recently.

focused its resources on the large internationally-oriented companies, such as Electrolux, SAAB-Scania and Atlas Copco. About 90 percent of its share holdings are invested in Sweden, and 10 percent in U.S.

The foundation's cailing for overseas investment now stands at 25 percent of total holdings, after being 10 percent previously. But the actual figures invested show the board plays the money-game cautiously.

The foundation ploughs back all its capital gains and 10 percent of its earnings. Of the remaining profits, about 70 percent goes to the prizes and much of the rest for the work of the election committees, which at times engage in costly travel and research to pick the winners.

The prize presentations and ceremonies, in Stockholm and in Oslo, on Dec. 10 each year also take a big chunk ont of the funds.

With a few exceptions, the foundation was exempted from state income tax in 1946 an unusual state of affairs in tax-ridden Sweden. However, it is not exempted from other taxes such as municipal real estate tax, indirect taxes and purchase taxes.

Apart from the money coming from the foundation, Sweden's Central Bank, the Riksbank, undertook at its centenary celebrations in 1968 to place a sum at the foundation's disposal each year for a prize in economic sciences in memory of nobel.

Foundation officials are careful to point out that the prize is not really a Nobel, as in was not instituted by Nobel himself and does not stem from his estate. However, in value it is equivalent to a Nobel Prize and this year's recipient --- or recipients -- will also receive $200,000 dollars in prize money.

Frank Stapleton leaves a huge void

LONDON. Oct. 8 (AP) - Arsenal manager Terry Neill's failure to find a replacement for Frank Stapleton has had a dire effect on the London soccer club's performances this season.

Stapleton, arguably the best allround striker in the English League, moved to Manchester United during the closeseason. Neill has said he is unwilling to talk in terms of £1 million plus to buy a new forward, but Arsenal's dreadful start to the season may soon force his hand.

The gunners have won only two of their cight league matches to date, scoring only five goals in those encounters. A 1-0 League Cup second round, first leg defeat against Fourth Division Sheffield United in midweek further underlined the team's

The loss successive seasons of Liam Brady, now with Juventus, and Stapleton -both had reached the end of their contracts has left Neill with a now chronic problem that the recent 500.000 pound stopgap signine of John Lawley from Sunderland has done nothing to relieve.

Neill has this week enquired about three players — Andy Gray, Wolverhampton's Scottish international striker. Manchester United's England winger Steve Coppell and Manchester City defender Steve Coppell.

"Both Gray and Coppell are grossly over priced said Arsenal chairman Dennis Hill-Wood, the man who controls the club Arsenal ready to shell out £1 million for the savior purse strings. "By the time all the extras are added up they would cost £1.25 million each.

That leaves Neill with bis hands tied, although Hill-Wood insist Arsenal will pay £1 million if the right player comes onto the transfer market.

That represents a distinct change in policy at a club which has looked on with disdain as other teams have splashed out massive sums on players of limited talent, but the Arsenal heirachy apparently now concedes the need to buy success.

"If the right player comes along. I'm prepared to spend £1 million." Hill-Wood confirmed. "We have made inquiries, but the players we want are not avenible."

While Arsenal have been surching for a savior. Swansea City manager John Toshack has quietly been building a team to compete with the hest. Toshack, who has guided the Welsh club from the Fourth Division to the First, has worked shrewdly in the transfer market, buying other people's rejects and convincing them they are good players.

Among Toshack's shrewd buys are centerback Colin Irwin (350,000 pounds from Liverpool), midfielder Gary Staoley (150.000 pounds from Everton) and former Eogland striker Bob Latchford (also 150,000 pounds from Everton).

Toshack has been able to find quality at bargain prices, Neill has not. That is why the meeting of the two clubs Saturday is one of the most attractive fixtures of the day. The contrast is irresistible.

The other contender for match of the day is the Manchester Derby at Maine Road in which Ron Atkinson's expensive United troops face John Bond's injury-hit city

Bood and Atkinson have been battling verbally since the start of the season - a veritable meeting of mouths. Atkinson has spent more money and had more initial suc-

With Stapleton scoring with almost monotonous regularity and Bryan Robsoo and Remi Moses sound buys in midfield, fourth-placed United are beginning to look like serious title contenders.

That itself is an indictment of the disappointing standard of the First Division. Current leaders lpswich have shown a recent tendency to lapse into defensive disarray at the slightest provocation, while secondplaced West Ham and third-placed Swansea cannot, surely be serious title challengers although both are teams of some

West Ham's success bas confounded the critics. many of whom predicted an instant return to the Second Division for the attack-minded cockneys, but John Lyall's team bave proved they are made of stern

West Ham should maintain their position among the leaders after Saturday's home match against Everton, whose manager Howard Kendall seems determined to put defense first, second and third.

Curreot champions Astoo Villa have only one victory to show from their eight opeoing fixtures, but should get at least a draw at Coveotry and have too much quality to continue to struggle.

Liverpool's recovery from a disappointing start should continue at home to Leeds, a team built on physical effort, while Tot-teham should have too much attacking flair for willing but limited, Stoke City.

lpswich should have eoough class to see off Wolvs at Portman Road, while the other First Division matches feature Birmingham against Southampton, Middlesbrough versus Noningham Forest, notts County against Sunderland and West Bromwich's meeting with much-improved Brighton.

Oakland, Kansas City march ahead

Montreal scrapes past Phillies to wrest advantage

NEW YORK. Oct. 8 (AP) — The Montreal Expos defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 Wednesday to take a 1-0 lead in the National League playoff series.

Meanwhile, the Oakland A's head home with a 2-0 lead over the Kansas City Royals. while the Houston Astros take a 2-0 advantage to Los Angeles to play the Dodgers. Both series will resume Friday. Oakland edged Kansas City 2-1 in the AL West Wednesday and Houston nipped Los Angeles 1-0 in 11 innings in the NL West.

There's no doubt that the team which wins the first game of a series has a better statistical chance to win it." said Montreal pitcher Steve Rogers after he combined with Jeff Reardon to stop Philadelphia. "But if you think we're going to sit back and take it easy, no thank you, "We've seen too many teams lose three straight after winning the first game." Rogers added.

Fanning, who took over as Expos manager on Sept. 8 when Dick Williams was fired. said he told his batters to lay off the low-breaking pitches of Philadelphia's ace Steve Carlton.

"Our players have hit against Carlton many times, and they all remember his stuff." Fanning said. "If they did anything to help themselves, it was laying off those pitches on which he gets so many strikeouts."

Carlton worked six innings, gave up seven hits and struck out six. He walked five. unusually high for the left-bander, who has won three CY young awards. "He (Carlton) docsn't often get beat." said Phillies manager Dallas Green, "He wasn't the same Steve Carlton, but he pitched a good baseball

Montreal jumped out front in the first when Jerry White reached on a fielders' choice, stole second and scored on Gary Carter's two-out double. After Ketth Moreland knotted the score with a second-inning homer, the Expos took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the inning on a double by Tim Wallach and a single by Chris Speier.

"You have to wait on his (Carlton's) slider because he'll usually throw it for balls."

Speier said. "We talked about it before the game, and that's what we decided to do." Montreal's final run came in the fourth when Speier walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on a double by Warren Cromar-

YANKEES 5, BREWERS 3: Rick Cerone's

two-run double capped a four-run inning aod the Yankees used brilliant relief pitching by Ron Davis and Rich Gossage to beat Mil-"I had a pretty good fastball, and when I got ahead 1 tried to pitch to spots." Davis said after earning the victory with 80 innings of no-hit, four-strikeout relief. "I threw the ball probably faster than I have since the strike." Oscar Gamble's two-run bomer into the right-center field in the second tied the score 2-2. Bob Watson followed with a single, Larry Milbourne had an infield single and Cerone scored them both with a double to "I don't think this was a key game, but we had to come in here and play intense baseball," Cerone said. "This was the first time we did it in over a year ... This was the first time I saw everybody pulling, screaming and really excited...

Milwaukee pulled to 4-3 on an RBI single by Ted Simmons in the fifth. But the Yankees added their final run in the ninth when Jerry Mumphrey singled, stole second, went to third when catcher Simmon's throw went into center field and scored when Robin Yount bobbled Reggie Jackson's two-out grounder

A'S 2, ROYALS 1: Oakland's Tony Armas, who pulled a muscle in the sixth inning, rapped his fourth hit of the game in the eighth - a double through the legs of Kansas City third baseman George Brett chasing home Dwayne Myrphy with the win-

West Germany qualifies

CANBERRA. Australia Oct. 6 (AP) — West Germany, a late entry in the World Youth Soccer Championship, qualified for the quarterfinals topping Group C by beat-ing Spain 4-2 at the National Athletics Stadium Thursday night.

The West Germans played in the youth tourney as replacement for Holland, which withdrew from the championship for administrative reasons.

The well-drilled Germans, who led 1-0 at half time, led 3-0 after 55 minutes and despite two defensive lapses were always stamped as the winners. Coach Dietrich Weise was pleased with the win but said he was not really surprised by the Spanish fight, "We lost concentration and I could see Spain getting back into the match," he said.

"But 1 think it shows how strong we were that we could hit back and score agaio despite the pressure."

Weise also said that he would prefer to meet England in the quarterfinal rather than Australia. "English foothall we know well but we don't know very much about Australia's team or style," he said. The Germans missed chances in the 10th and 24th minutes before Martin Trieb scoped in the 30th minute. Following a slow German buildup. Trieb sprinted through the Spanish

TILBURG, Netherlands, Oct. 8 (AP) -Hungary's Lajos Portisch joined Dutch champion Jan Timman in the lead of the Interpolis Chess Tournament after winning his game in the fifth round of the event Wednesday.

Portisch played black in a Sicilian defense to overcome grandmaster Bent Larsen of Denmark in 41 moves. Experts said Portisch unleashed an attack on the queen's side that decided the game right after the opening. Larsen played on until adjournment but resigned without further play.

Timman was pitted with black against Sweden's Ulf Andersson in Wednesday's round and settled for a quick draw after 14 moves from an English opening. Anderson follows the two tournament leaders at half a point, but he still has to complete his fourth-round eocounter with Aleksander Belyavsky of the Soviet Union, a game that is most likely to end in a draw and bring him alongside Timman and Portisch. Former Soviet world champion Tigran Petrosian won his adjourned game from the pre-vious round against Britain's Tony Miles and accepted a draw in Wednesday's action after 20 moves with black from a Petrov defense against Robert Huebner of West Germany. The performance brought him into fourth positioo in the standings.

Boris Spassky, another former world champion, fought back from an inferior position to obtain winning chances against fellow

Soviet grandmaster Garry Kasparov. The game, from a King's Indian defense, was adjourned after 57 moves, and Spassky, who played black, was a bishop up against a pawn. Belyavsky spoiled a better position with black against Yugoslavia's Ljubomir Ljubo-jevic and accepted a draw after 54 moves from a Scottish opening. In the final encounter of the day, Miles settled for a draw with white in a 26-move Reti game against Holland's Genna Sosonko.

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)

It's an up-and-down time in the world of friendships. Stress cooperation with others. Avoid succumbing to unhealthy introversion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It's a challenging time in business. Luck is with you, but you'll have to capitalize on it.

(July 23 to Aug. 22) 24 of pleasure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Curb temperament and you'll make progress on the job. Rise above office tension. A close tie may be extravagant in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct 22) You may meet with competition in romance, but leisure-time activities will afford satisfactions. Avoid temperamental outbursts.

Find a quiet nook at home where you can do your work. A family member may be edgy. Sidestep a dubious romantic involvement.

X SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You needn't be short with others, though an appointment may have to be changed. Social life is promising. Don't be moody with a family member. CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You can improve income now, but avoid disputes about money in your personal life. Curb inappropriate remarks in the evening. AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) A friend is sympathetic, but it's not the best time to push your interests. Others may be erratic or temperamental, but don't overreact.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) A co-worker could irk you.

diamonds. It is generally agreed that of the three departments of bridge — bidding, dummy play and defense — the most difficult is defense. Long experience enables most players to bid reasonably well and also to play the dummy well. But when it comes to top-notch defense, many players find that they don't function nearly as well as they theoretically should.

This is perhaps surprising, since the same faculties that enable a player to bid and play well are also available to defend well. But, alas, lots of players fall down on the job the setting trick.

when it comes to defense, and all too often they unintentionally give declarer a contract that should have been defeated.

Let's assume you're East and that partner leads the king of diamonds, taken by South with the ace. Declarer plays a trump, West discarding a diamond, and you win dummy's ten with the ace. What would you return at trick three? (Remember, you see only dummy's hand and your OWn.) Actually, there's only one correct play to make. You should lead the king of spades! If you do, declarer goes down; if you don't, declarer makes the slam.

How can you be expected to make such an extraordinary play? It's not really that difficult if you stop to think about it. After all, you know that declarer has twelve sure tricks if you allow him to score them - one spade (he's sure to have the ace for his six heart bid), five hearts, one diamond and five clubs.

Your only chance to stop the contract lies in forcing South to win trick three with the ace of spades. If it turns out that South was dealt 3-6-1-3 distribution — which is what you have to hope - he's sure to bite the dust. He simply can't get out of dummy without allowing you to score

Sees closeness of views

Schmidt satisfied with talks in France

LATCHE, Southwest France, Oct. 8 (Agencies) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Thursday pronounced him-self extremely satisfied with talks Westerslay night and Thursday with French President François Mitterrand at the latter's country

Schmidt told newsmen they would be surprised at the closeness of views on all international topics touched on, adding that he was delighted at the opportunity to meet Mitter-rand in this "magnificent country setting".

A reliable German source said that Thursday's morning's talks concentrated on the broad issues involved in the future of the European Economic Community (EEC). But the two leaders did not discuss the West German budget contribution, which Bon feels is too high.

No details were released of the three session of talks. Wednesday night's meeting centered on relaunching Eurpean cooperation, the coming North-South conference in Mexico, and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's visit to Bonn next month.

A French presidential spokeswoman said the two leaders discussed the East-West bal-

Chiang Ching-kuo

Taipei rejects union talks with Peking

TAIPEl. Oct. 8 (Agencies) - President Chiang Ching-kuo of the Republic of China Wednesday ruled out any negotiations with the Chinese Communist on unification.

Addressing the Central Standing Committee of the Kuomintang of China in his capacity as chairman of the party, President Chiang said. "I want to state clearly and resolutely once again: We shall never negotiate with the Chinese Communists. In solemnly expressing this view, I want to tell our compatriots on the Chinese mainland that we are resolved to remove the yoke that the Communists have imposed on them. In their clamor for peace talks, the Chinese Communists are intending to deceive our compatriots on the mainland by saving "the government for which you yearn is about to talk peace with us, so you have lost all hope. "

"We must tell our mainland compatriots of our confidence and determination to deliver them and assure them that we shall never talk with the Communists they hate so deeply. Our solemn mission is to carry out the three principles of the people and unify China. We must courageously carry out on the struggle to its victorious end."

He added that alarmed by the Kuomintang movement of "unifying China," the Chinese Communists have recently started a united front propaganda. Their strategem is to create a false image in the world that we do not want peace. But we are determined not to talk to

He said: "There is a watershed between benevolent government based on the three principles of the people and the tyrannical rule of communism. No confusion can be allowed between these two. The happy and peaceful lives of our compatriots in this hastion of national recovery has for more than 30 years provided a striking contrast to the unparalleled misery of our compatriots on the mainland across the Taiwan Straits. This illumines the basic difference between the two political philosophies, two systems and two ways of life, and shows which is good and which is evil. But the Communists distort this as 'partisan intransigence,' 'partisan rivalry' and 'powers and privileges' to be enjoyed by the Kuomintang and Chinese Communist Party." Meanwhile, informed sources here have said that the post-Mao Tse-tung strongman, Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, will make a speech marking the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution Friday. In it he is expected to make further overtures to Taipei.

ance of forces and a variety of international problems during a six-hour session Wednes-day night which ended around midnight. Among the key subjects was the situation in the Middle East after the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the question of world energy supplies, she said.

Mitterrand briefed the chancellor on his recent visit to Saudi Arabia and both leaders exchanged views on Libya and the Libyan military intervention in neighboring Chad. Underlining the importance he attaches to stability in the Middle East, the French leader announced Thursday he would travel to Cairo for President Sadat's funeral Saturday, accompanied by Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson and Justice Minister Robert Badinter. An informed source said that Schmidt was almost certain to attend Sadat's funeral.

Over dinner with close aides, the two leaders also discussed what the spokeswoman called last weekend's "successful realignment of the European Monetary System (EMS) currencies." The German mark was revalued by 5.5 percent and the French franc devalued by three percent within the EMS. French Economics and Finance Minister Jacques Delors joined the talks, underscoring the importance of the economic aspects.

West Germany, which sees its revaluation as a significant gesture of support for France's fledgling Socialist government, will be looking in return for a French commitment to fight inflation and withstand pressure for protectionist trade measures.

French officials said Schmidt welcomed a public endorsement from Mitterrand of Bonn's commitment to deploy new U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles on its territory if East-West negotiations failed to reduce the Soviet Union's SS-20 missiles targetted on Western Europe,

The chancellor is under growing pressure at home from opponents of the Western alliance's missile strategy and they are planning a mass anti-nuclear demonstration in Bonn Saturday: This is the third private meeting between the two leaders since Mitterrand took office in May and officials on both sides saw it as proof of the close Franco-German partnership.

Schmidt flew home Thursday after lunch with Mitterrand and members of the French government.

Polish hijacker jailed

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AFP) - A Pole who hijacked a plane of the Polish airline Lot to West Berlin on July 21 was sentenced by a West Berlin court Thursday to five years' jail for endangering air safety.

The prosecution had asked for six years for Bernard Pientka, 21. Pientka told the court that he had decided on the gesture owing to the situation in Poland and because he refused to do national service.

The court refused to grant attenuating circumstances. Armed with a toy pistol, Pientka hijacked the plane with 48 passengers on a flight from Katowice to the Baltic port of

Indira arrives in Manila amid tight security steps

MANILA, Philippines, Oct. 8 (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, the first Indian head of government to make a state visit to the Philippines, arrived here Thursday amid tight security that government sources said was prompted by the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

On her last stop en route home from a conference of Commonwealth heads of state and government in Melbourne, Australia, Mrs. Gandhi was accorded full military honors at the airport and reviewed an honor guard alongside President Ferdinand Mar-

Maze men attack Prior plan

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 8 (AP) - Irish nationalist guerrillas in the Maze Prison have said parts of the British government's reforms plan were "vengeful" and inadequate and called for more information about the proposals.

Northern Ireland's Protestant militants. meanwhile, attacked the reforms as "appeasement and surrender" to the Irish Rephulican Army and the splinter Irish National Liberation Army. Their leader, the Rev. Ian Paisley, warned the British government the reform plan will be met with "confrontation and the utmost resistance." The Protestants called the plan a "sellout to terrorism."

The H-hlock prisoners at the Maze objected Wednesday to the proposal to cut in half the parole time lost through their 51/2year cell block protest if they call off their so-called "dirty protest" at the prison. They said the remission was inadequate.

The prisoners gave no idication they were ready to call off their protest in which they wear only blankets and smear their cells with dirt. But they said in a statement: "We hope that petty vindictiveness and hureaucracy are not going to be the cause of further confrontation in this dispute."

The reform proposals are part of a takeit-or-leave-it package announced Tuesday by Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior.

attended Tuesday's illfated parade, during which the Egyptian leader was killed, told the Associated Press, they were surprised, in some cases shocked, at the way Sadat's ring of personal bodyguards and security soldiers failed to act.

Some diplomats expressed concern at the way the Egyptian version of the assassination was unfolding, especially since Defense Minister Abdul Halim Abu Ghazala was quoted Thursday's hy Cairo press to have said the plot was limited to four men, three of whom were civilians who masqueraded as soldiers and sneaked onto an army truck for the weapons parade. "It has to raise questions," a Western military attache who witnessed the attack said with a sigh.

Questions were raised when video tapes of the incident were replayed and newsmen and diplomats reconstructed the event. The shooting started at 1:05 (1105GMT) in the afternoon, yet a security ring did not appear around the area until 15 minutes later at 1:20 (1120GMT), long after the attackers had fled

A Western military attache who has attended numerous Egyptian military reviews said it was curious there was no sharpshooter stationed with a rifle and highpowered scope atop and behind the president's position. This would be the rule for defending against a lone soldier going berserk, the attache said.

Most chilling, though, were pictures that appeared in the Cairo press the morning after the assassination. Taken from a tower at one side of the reviewing stand, they showed the attackers were able to charge right up to the lip of the chest-high barrier in front of Sadat and repeatedly fire their automatic rifles at point-hlank range, without anyone apparently returning fire.

There were a few frames that showed security guards apparently running away or simply standing nearby without drawing their weapons. But in a television film, one security guard can be seen emptying his pistol at three fleeing attachers, hut without hitting them. At least three Western military attaches who saw the attack at close range said there was no return fire in the military sense.

The only initial attempts to cut down the assailants were from handgun-toting guards who in some cases were non-Egyptians protecting their own diplomats, two attaches

Diplomatic sources said the U.S. emhassy here has ordered all of its envoys, who attended the parade, to file detailed reports on what they saw, with an eye toward trying to assess the performance of Sadat's security. for which the Washington Post Thursday reported the United States Central Intelligence Agency has spent $20 to $25 million.

It has also been learned that Western military attaches are trading observations and their consensus hy Thursday is that the Egyptian version of the killing contains factual The attaches, along with viewers of the television footage, say that in addition to the at least three men photographed shooting at Sadat, three others stayed behind aboard an army truck and loosed sustained fire toward the president.

In addition, television film shows the truck driver in his cah after stopping to make the attack possible, while the co-driver jumps out, hurls a grenade toward Sadat and quickly gets back in the cah. This suggests that eight men may have been involved in the attack.

It was "inconceivable" for civilians to have slipped unnoticed into the parade, as Ghazala alleged because they would have been spotted by the other soldiers, one attache said. The only way this could have happened, said the attache, was if officers at least at company level had known about it.

He said the Western attaches averred collusion between Egypt's top generals and the assassins was highly unlikely because generals were all placed in the line of fire and some were wounded.

British ship salvages Soviet gold worth $74m

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 (Agencies) — A salvage ship loaded with Soviet gold bars plucked from the sunken wreck of a World War II British warship arrived Thursday in the northern Soviet port of Murmansk to drop off the Kremlin's share of the gold, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

British salvage officials say the bars that were recovered are worth $74 million at current prices. Tass said the recovery operation, hampered at times by gale-force winds, had been "successfully concluded."

Murmansk port sources, reached by telephone from Moscow by the Associated Press, said an official Soviet delegation spent several hours aboard the West German-registered salvage ship Stephaniturm after it arrived here. Officials in Moscow said the Soviet delegation included an official of the Soviet state insurance company Ingosstrakh, which is representing Soviet interests in the recovery operation.

The Soviet gold, originally destined for the United States as payment for wartime U.S. arms shipments to the Soviets, was being transported by the Royal Navy cruiser Edin burgh in 1942 when the warship was torpedoed by German destroyers. The Edin burgh wasscuttled to keep the gold out of Nazi

The gold was hauled 240 meters through the freezing waters of the Barents Sea in a 40-day operation. Twelve divers, working in total darkness, recovered the bars through a small hole in the Edinburgh 's armored hull. Murmansk is 272 kms west of where the Edinburgh went down, becoming the tomh of 60 British sailors, In Aberdeen, Scotland, Malcolm Williams, managing director of the British diving company Wharton Williams, said Wednesday that "almost 100 percent of the gold has been recovered." What's left is a handful of gold bars which are not considered economically recoverable at this time," Williams said.

Wharton Williams is part of a consortium, headed by a British firm, Jessop Marine Recoveries, which will get 45 percent of the value of the bullion. The Soviet Union gets two-thirds of the balance and Britain, onethird. The United States long ago receive insurance compensation for the lost gold.

An Ingosstrakh official in Murmansk, Kalina Konovalov, told the Associated Press by telephone early Thursday afternoon that Soviet officials had completed their initial visit to the ship. He said official counting of the gold and acceptance of it by Soviet officials, however, had not yet taken place. "All that is still ahead." Konovalov said, He added there was a small ceremony Thursday to mark the arrival of the gold, and that acceptance formalities were expected to be concluded by Friday. The operation broke all records for the recovery of sunken treasure. The previous record was $nine million worth of gold (based on current exchange rates) recovered from the liner Laurentic, sunk by a mine off southern Ireland in 1917. The gold was worth about $24 million under exchange rates at the time. The operation was carried out over the protests of some of the 300 survivors from the Edinburgh and relatives of 60 men who died when it was hit by the German torpedo.

The Edinburgh was registered as an official British war grave, and spokesman for the relatives and survivors rejected official claims that the work could be carried out without disturbing the dead. The British Department of Trade said one reason for going ahead with the operation was the fear that with advances in salvage techniques, unauthorized recovery attempts might have been staged.

Jewish targets attacked; 6 hurt ROME, Oct. 8 (AP) - At least six persons were injured in two bombings against Jewish targets in Rome and nearby Ostia, police reported. A bomh went off in a tourist information office of Israel's El Al Airlines on Rome's fashionable Via Veneto Wednesday, police reported. First reports said four persons were injured, but police said later that only one person suffered cuts by flying glass. About the same time, shortly before 7 p.m., a powerful bomb exploded in a busy square in Osna. the site of ancient ruins west of Rome and where thousands of Russian Jews live waiting for their visas to the United States and other Western countries. Police said at least five persons - two

Soviet jews and three Italians - were injured, two of them seriously. Police described the bombs as crude home-made

Police said hundreds of Jews usually gather in the square in the evening to chat. The first bomh, planted outside the door of El Al's second floor office, damaged the marble stairs and furniture, knocked down the door and shattered windows, police said.

A 46-year-old Italian, Edoardo Vaccha, was taken to a hospital with injuries requiring hospitalization, police said.

Good Morning

By Jihad Al Khazen

A new line of work has come to my attention — work for which the only qualification is being a celebrity.

You would think a successful actor like Larry Hagman of the television soap opera Dallas makes quite enough from his work. But no, there's more. He is also now something of a "professional guest" at receptions given by large oil companies.

All he has to do is attend the party in question, smile sweetly and pass the time of day civilly with those in attendance, then take his check and go home. And the size of the said check? Well, you'd better sit down and relax first. The sum is $30,000 — what many people would count themselves very lucky indeed if they make it in a whole year. And Hagman — who is now surely as rich as the infamous J.R. he portrays so well on television — is by no means the only one. For there is this very charming girl, Linda Carter, who is much liked in her role of Wonder Woman.

Now Ms. Carter, I'm certain, would be the first to admit that she isn't, or at any rate not yet, your actual Sarah Bernhardt. But she still is invited to a party at a cost to the hosts of twenty thousand of crispest lettuce. Twenty thousand for saying" how di do' and sticking around for a while. And the same young gets another ten thousands of the same if she allows herself to be persuaded to sing - something which does moderately well, apparently,

Some work. Some pay.

Solidarity to set up tribunals

GDANSK, Poland, Oct. 8 (R) - The Solidarity free trade union has ended a marathon-18-day national congress with a bold vision for radical changes in Communist-ruled Poland. The congress, Solidarity's first, approved a program which effectively called for the hreakup of the Communist Party's control over key sectors like the economy and

It also demanded that past leaders responsihle for the country's present economic and social crisis be hrought to justice and said Solidarity would set up its own people's tribunals to pass moral judgment if the authorities failed to comply.

The final day of the congress Wednesday was marked by a flurry of activity as nearly 900 delegates vied to get their resolutions adopted before proceedings were halted. One key resolution approved by the congress threatened a national warning strike to protest over recent price increases and demanded a freeze on consumer goods pending implementation of Solidarity's economic reform program.

The congress also paid tribute to the now dishanned dissident movement KOR which hlazed the trial for free ted by implementation Poland. Two resolutions demanded the release of political prisoners and brought the campaign for their freedom under Solidarity's direct control.

The congress also demanded respect for minorities, cooperation between the industrial and agricultural Solidarity as well as independence for judges. Solidarity leader Lech Walesa closed the congress by saying it had approved a magnificent and beautiful porgram and added that it must now be testedhy implementation and practice. Thursday he chaired the first meeting of Solidarity's new national commission to select a permanent presidium.

Meanwhile. French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson arrived in Warsaw Thursday at the start of a two-day official visit to Poland. In an interview published by the Polish press Thursday, Cheysson described the visit, the first hy a French minister since the election of President Francois Mitterrand's Socialists in May, as "symbolic." Among Communist-ruled Eastern European nations Poland, Cheysson said, was "closest" to
